

All At Sea

The fish swims the bay knowing only fish and water and darkness. The fish sees no shadows hears no noise, never comprehends the folly of the bait.

The fish out of water is all at sea, a shadow of itself, hooked.